From the Desk of Father Walter:
My Dear People,

Last week I wrote to you about the importance of seeing our struggles, not as an indication of God’s absence in our life, but as a sign that He is actively transforming us. At its heart, this is the mystery of the Cross, and the Cross is the heart of our Catholic Faith. We have to understand that, objectively speaking, suffering is an evil. It is an indication or sign that something is ‘not right’, there’s a problem. But then, how can suffering be useful if it is objectively evil? Well, if what is making us suffer is directly caused by our own current sins, then God can use it to force us to admit something needs to change, to convert. If we suffer because of something we did in the past, then we can be sorry and turn to God more lovingly for help. Most often, we suffer from things that no one is ‘guilty of’, like many diseases, or unexpected events, or even personal limitations that are in no way sinful, but make life painful. God’s plan to save us was to take our human nature on Himself. In doing so, he took the weight and burden of all human suffering, sin and evil on Himself as well. By dying on the Cross in a perfect act of love and obedience, Jesus, Who is both God and Man, not only merited the forgiveness of all sin, but He also made it possible that our sufferings could be something we could offer to God as a means to bring us closer to Him and make us holier. But here is the necessary ingredient to making the objective evil of suffering into something transforming and even powerful in God’s eyes: we have to be willing to give up (or sincerely try to give up) anything sinful which is causing the suffering, and we need to offer our sufferings, whatever they may be, to Jesus. And, even more practically speaking, this can only happen through prayer. Prayer opens us up to the power, mercy, and love of God. And how does power, mercy, and love come to us? Through the gift of the Cross - the supreme moment of saving Love and Gift in the life of Jesus Christ. The moment of supreme weakness became the moment of greatest power and victory. This means, there is no human sin or evil greater than God’s goodness. I am sure that every single person reading this article has some suffering, small or large, that needs to be offered to Our Lord. When you do this, He Himself will help you bear it, in other words, He will carry your cross with you since He carried His cross for love of you. And then, even if it still hurts, it will become something of eternal value. Or, in the words of St John Vianney: “When we carry our Cross, we shall soon find that it begins to carry us to heaven”.

Fr. Walter

COMMUNITY THANKS

The Community Clothing Center would like to thank the generous parishioners of CCBT for the portion received of new socks, mittens & hats from the Christmas mitten tree. These items were much needed, especially with the early winter weather. As our mission is concerned with the dignity and care of all God's children, the gift of new socks, new gloves, new underwear is always a goal to be attained; your contributions are greatly appreciated! I am proud to be in this CCBT church family!

Thank you always, with gratitude,
